

Meet the Grower

Prairie Farms Ft. Wayne, IN

We are Indiana Farm Proud! Prairie Farms is a dairy cooperative which means we are owned and operated by our farm families. Visit one of our farms on any given day, and you'll find family members, often from no less than two or three generations, pitching in. Whether it's caring for our cows, or caring for the land using sustainable farming practices, producing the highest quality milk and naturally good dairy products has been the Prairie Farms way for over 80 years.

Love for our cows is at the heart of everything we do and we set the highest standards of care for our cows when it comes to health, facilities and housing, nutrition, equipment and milking procedures. The integrity of the program is ensured through third-party verification by outside experts. Often times, our cows eat before we do and follow healthier diets than most! When not milking, our cows can be found relaxing in a barn with fresh bedding or in the pasture with access to plenty of clean water and food.

In Indiana, dairy farming is a family affair. Over 60 Indiana farm families provide the highest quality milk available for our dairy products. We are the farmers in your neighborhood, supplying fresh milk to grocery stores that we, too, shop at. Our communities are important to us, with many of us serving on local school, church or municipality boards and committees. And because this is our home too, we care deeply about the land and water resources, and are dedicated to preserving our natural resources to our best extent.

We Thank You! We know you have many options in the grocery store and you are seeking the best, affordable options for your family. We, the dairy farmers of Prairie Farms, would like to thank you for choosing us, and want to ensure you we are committed to producing the healthiest and safest milk in the world.
